

PRESS RELEASE

14th September 2008

SILVER ATENA merger completed

The former Technology and Systems business of Atena Engineering GmbH, based in Germany has completed its merger on 12th September 2008 with Silver Software, developers of safety critical software based in Malmesbury (UK), India and Spain.

The new organisation, SILVER ATENA, combines Atena's and Silver Software 10-year track record of delivering successful projects on major programmes such as the Airbus A380, Boeing 787, BMW Hydrogen Project and the European Rail Traffic Management System. SILVER ATENA now offers a comprehensive service portfolio including system engineering, software engineering, hardware engineering, safety engineering, consultancy and test equipment products to the high integrity systems market.

Operating predominantly in the aerospace, defence, rail, automotive and gas turbine domains SILVER ATENA offers a proven business model combining European expertise and the benefits of offshore delivery through our world class development centres.

With over 500 highly skilled engineers spread across Germany, UK, India, Spain, US and the Middle East servicing multi-national clients, SILVER ATENA is positioned for strong growth in the next 3 to 5 years.
